I entitle my paintings "Clairs-allants", in connection with the light produced by color and the movement created by shapes.

How can we stimulate our gaze to wander through colored spaces where stains, lines, imprints are juxtaposed and interpenetrate?

I explore, I play, or rather replay, from painting to painting, the attempt to suggest a universe that constantly eludes me, even if it is born of the encounter with the world in which I live and which fashions me.

For a few moments, the "real" environment is replaced by a blank surface where everything is ideally possible, and which will deepen, become clearer and suddenly get a life of its own.

Density or dispersal, compactness or tenuity? I seek both tension and respiration, in a combination of colors that provides a certain quality of light.
